3. On 1 June 1951 the Islands Control Bureau of Kwangtung was authorized to appropriate JPY 20,000,000,000 for the opening of highways and the construction of defense works on various islands and to organize patrol and surprise search units at sea.

Maritime Activities and Coastal Defense

4. As of late May, the Kwangtung authorities had been actively organizing and giving political and military training to fishermen.
- a. In the organization of fishing craft, 3 boats form 1 tsu (4), and thirty boats form 1 tui (10). The activities of each tui are coordinated, and the following rules are strictly observed:
- (1) No leakage of information permitted.
  - (2) No harboring of agents and guerrillas permitted.
  - (3) No contacts of any sort with reactionaries.
  - (4) No reading of unapproved literature.
  - (5) No smuggling on the part of members of the tui, nor are their boats to be loaned for such purposes.
- b. Political personnel of the local armed forces conduct indoctrination classes for every tsu.
- c. For two hours of each day, fishermen are to assemble on nearby beaches to receive military training from local armed forces. Fishing craft must notify the political officers of their intention to put to sea. On trips of more than 3 days' duration involving calls at other ports, fishermen are expected to attend indoctrination classes at their ports of call.
- d. Fishing in Hong Kong or Macao waters has been forbidden.
5. As of late May inspection stations for the search of river and coastal shipping had been established at the following places in Kwangtung: Shich'i (113-22, 22-30), Kongmoon (113-05, 22-35), Chaoch'ing (112-29, 23-04), T'ai-p'ing (113-40, 22-50), Miao Bay, Aot'ouchiang (114-32, 22-43), Shanwei (115-22, 22-47), Hailong (115-20, 22-58), Lufeng (115-38, 22-58), Shench'uanchiang (116-00, 22-00), Chanchiang (116-21), Haik'oufu (112-46, 22-02).

Aid to the Democratic Republic of Vietnam (DRV)

6. As of mid-June an underground storage area had been constructed on Weichou (Weichow) Island, between Hainan and Pakhoi. Large supplies of naval and air stores such as munitions, mines, and fuel were stored there. In mid-May a large consignment of military materials were shipped to the DRV from that island.
